THE GUN SEIZURE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—A fresh customs officer took a gun from a Chinaman on Monday. The Mongolian won that particular gun at a raffle held last Saturday night in the Vancouver House. The gun was bought from J. Barnsley, Government street, on the 5th of last month. If the custom house officer wants the gun to shoot "talkative citizens" with, he can have it. The duty was paid, old man; seize something contraband. A Chinaman with a gun is an oddity, but a customs officer should give the poor heathen a chance. John was only a pot hunter. J. G.

SOUTHFIELD MINE.

An Account of the Fire—No Great Damage—Now Practically Out.

From our own Correspondent.]

Nanaimo, Oct. 16—On Sunday morning, at 4:30, William Hunter, engineer in charge at the Southfield Mine, was startled by a vast volume of thick black smoke belching forth from the ventilating shaft. The ventilation of the mine is affected by a powerful fan, driven by a stationary engine, erected and connected to the fan, close to the upcast shaft, and connected therewith by an extension of the building over the shaft. The alarm was sent to the company's offices, and the steam fire engine left at once with 1150 feet of hose, and immediately on arrival commenced to throw one stream on the fan house and another down the mine connected by the Siamese below. The steam pump was fed by an auxiliary steam pipe from the top, and threw another stream directly on the fire. The combined efforts of the streams succeeded in centralizing the seat of the fire to the rock tunnel that comprises the last one hundred yards of the air course to the fan shaft. The fire at first was roaring with the fierceness of a blast furnace, and the management decided to pull down that part of the fan house that extended over the shaft. A heavy cable was hitched to the framework and the rope loaded with willing hands to about 35 or 40 and the long pull and the strong pull was indulged in; but so strongly and firmly was the building erected that it proved a failure, as they could not move the building, and not until it was decided to pull it to pieces piece-meal, was the building got down. Then half of the shaft near the fan house was covered and recovered with soil on top, and the stream continuously kept going down the up-cast shaft. Down below the men worked like Titans in a stifling heat. Several had to be borne back out of the sulphurous fumes all but over powered, yet amidst all those difficulties a steady gain on the flames was maintained, and at 5 p. m., the whole fire was fully under control. The damage is not so serious as was at first feared, and if nothing unexpected happens the whole of the works will be in full blast about the end of the week. The engine will be replaced in a few hours and the shaft-house can be temporarily erected of canvass, while the new one is being rebuilt. The levels and gangways are but little damaged fortunately, and the output will not be stopped for any length of time.

Southfield, Oct 16.—The fire is practically out. The work now consists of removing the debris and retimbering the burnt ground below. On top the effects are not to be seen at all beyond the demolished part of the shaft on the line of the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway, four miles from Nanaimo. The steam fire engine will be sent back almost immediately and the hose and apparatus will today be back again in the engine house. It was lucky for Nanaimo that the fire was got hold of so early, or the damage to the mines would have been far more serious than many of us imagine, as the Southfield mine is the great backstay at present of the V. C. Co.

There are only two of these ships in the harbor at present awaiting cargos of coal, and they are discharging ballast.

It was reported that the Arabella, from Esquimalt may have to be beached as it is believed she will leak too much without a general overhauling on our natural dry dock, before she takes on her whole cargo.

Two more vessels have arrived at the mouth of the harbor for coal.

POLICE COURT.

J. D. Robinson's Case—One Charge Withdrawn.

[Before Hon. A. N. Richards, Q.C.]

Peter Martin, charged by officer Thomas with being in possession of an intoxicant. Mr. McNab Stuart appeared for the defence. Fined, $25.

T. Davie, charged with driving over James Bay bridge at a pace faster than a walk.

Officer Gayden stated that he saw defendant crossing the bridge; defendant was driving at a pace faster than a walk.

Mr. Davie said he was often on the bridge but always tried to keep within the law.

His Honor imposed a fine of $5.

James D. Robinson, on remand from the 10th, was the next case called.

Mr. Davie said the prosecution was ready to go on with the charge of embezzlement. The charge of being an accessory would be withdrawn. Since the last meeting of the court the sum of $1,275.50 was found in the safe. There still remains a balance due of $604.75. The amount deficient last year was over $2,000. A receipt was given to Mr. Robinson for $250 above the sum received by Ald. Harris. A mistake was made by Ald. Harris in counting the money.

His Honor—Who counted the money?

Mr. Mills—The money was counted in my presence by Ald. Harris.

Mr. Davie—The mistake was made by Ald. Harris. The sum of $250 was supposed to be in an envelope. When the receipt was given the envelope was not opened. Since then it was found that there was no money there.

Mr. Mills—I saw $250 taken from the envelope and counted. This money was counted twice. There was no embezzlement. Mr. Robinson is prepared to pay over any moneys due.

His Honor—There appears to be no fraud. Why didn't Mr. Robinson pay over the money?

Mr. Mills—The money was offered to Mr. Duck, but he would not accept it excepting in the presence of the Mayor. There was no intention of embezzlement.

Mr. Davie—There is evidence to prove that the prosecution has a clear case. Mr. Robinson's case is like those of men in banks who intend to replace the money which they took. The road to hell is paved with good intentions.

Mr. Mills—We will give a cheque for the sum of $500 to Your Honor to cover any deficiencies. Mr. Robinson has been robbed. The court will allow Mr. Robinson to examine the books and postpone the case until Monday. The defendant will make good any deficiencies.

Mr. Davie—We want no compromise. If the defendant returns whatever is short the matter will be laid before the Municipal Council and dealt with as they may decide. If restitution is made most likely the case will be withdrawn.

Mr. Mills—We want no favors from the Council.

Mr. Davie—This is not a question of settling a debt. The defendant was supposed to hand over all sums received over $200. This he did not do and the case must go on, unless it is decided by the Corporation to withdraw it.

The Fisheries Question—Stage Held Up—Criminal Libel Against W. F. Luxton.

Toronto, Oct. 17—The Free Press says editorially to-day on the fisheries question: "Would it not be well that Canada should consent to have her rights under the treaty of 1818, and be willing in the altered condition of things in respect to carriage by rail to permit American fishermen the privilege of making use of our lines for the purpose of forwarding their legitimate catch to the general market? We frankly confess that we would be in favor of such a concession."

RESULT OF A QUARREL.

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 17—At Carthage, on Monday night, Frederick Heron, a desperado, and Salasino Chavez, a Mexican, became involved in a quarrel. Heron drew a large knife and stabbed Chavez in the neck, completely severing the jugular vein, death resulting in a few minutes. Heron, after completing his terrible work, attempted to make his escape, but was overtaken by friends of the murdered man, who it seems was very popular, and was beaten until he sustained fatal injuries.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 17—A clear sky, delightful weather, the largest crowd of the campaign in Northern Indiana, and an abundant supply of oratory contributed to the success of the great Harrison and Morton rally at Tippicanoe Ball ground which began to-day. Speech-making from three stands opened before noon. At the principal meeting Richard W. Thompson presided, and delivered an address to the veterans of 1836 and 1840. New York, Oct. 17—A Chinaman arrived at Castle Garden this morning from Europe on the steamship Brittannia but he will be sent back.

EVERYBODY SAFE.

It now turns out that nobody was hurt in the Westpoint tunnel last night but the damage to the tunnel is very great. Passengers groped their way out of the tunnel and were carried to Carmualt by boat at midnight. The tunnel run under a parade ground of the United States Military Academy one hundred and thirty feet above the surface of the ground for a diameter of fifty feet and sank down thirty feet.

THE ADJOURNMENT QUESTION.

Washington, Oct, 17—The adjournment question came up again in the House of Representatives this afternoon. Alger of Texas asked a question of privilege and offered a resolution for an adjournment sine die on the 20th inst. On motion of Richardson of Tennessee, after some debate, the resolution was referred to the Ways and Means Committee and the House adjourned.

RUNNING AS USUAL.

Chicago, Oct. 17—All the north side cars are running as usual this morning. The cars are manned by new men and guarded by the police. No disturbances so far are reported.

TERRIBLE DESTITUTION.

Minneapolis, Oct. 17—M. J. Horomann of this city, who has been investigating the condition of farmers in Ramsey county, Dakota, reported starving to death, returned last night. He says seventy families are absolutely destitute of food and feel and something must be done immediately. The condition of the people is beyond description. Men, women and children are in rags and have not a cent of money. Their crops were totally destroyed by frost in August and their land, stock and farm implements are mortgaged. He says absolute distress prevails everywhere.

FEARFUL PETROLEUM EXPLOSION.

London, Oct. 17.—The force of yesterday's explosion in the forehold of the steamer Ville De Calais, at Calais from Philadelphia, tore off the deck and partly carried away the sides. Only the forward portion sank. The fire raged fiercely in the portion above water. Other shipping lying in the vicinity was much damaged by the explosion and it is feared the loss of life is great. Portions of a dozen bodies were found lying on the quay. Arms, legs, and heads scattered about in shocking confusion.

VANCOUVER NEWS.

Marine News—Runaway—Goods Lost at Sea, &c.

From Our Own Correspondent.]

Vancouver, Oct. 16—Yesterday was cold and blustering; to-day is much milder, though still showery, with occasional glimpses of Sol.

A union mass meeting will be held on Thursday evening next in the Wilson Hall. D. L. Moody the celebrated evangelist is expected to be present.

Last evening a large number of singers met in the Y. M. C. A. Hall to practice for the Moody meetings. Another practice will be held to-night.

The Chilian ship Gauniver, Captain Peterson, 950 tons register, arrived at the Moodyville mill yesterday, from San Francisco to load lumber for Valparaiso.

The steamship Danube, Captain Hall, arrived from Portland on Sunday afternoon with 26,454 sacks of flour, and 209 boxes of apples and onions, consigned to Hongkong. She also brought 54 Chinese in bond, on their return to their native country. The Danube spoke the sealing schooner Rosie Olsen, of Astoria, which had been seven days out and had experienced a rough time of it. Capt. Hill supplied the schooner with oil, her supply having run out.

On Sunday night some burglars entered the dry goods store of Mr. G. J. Wilson, on Cordova street, by breaking a pane of glass in the front door. They robbed the drawer of about $20 in cash and carried off a quantity of dry goods.

On Friday evening last a workman in the employ of Mr. A. H. Davies, a lumberman on Gambier Island, left the city wharf with a large boat load of supplies for Mr. Davies' camp and family, and when near the lighthouse encountered a bubble of a sea and to prevent the boat from filling, threw the goods overboard. Mr. Davies, who followed in a small boat some few hours later, picked up a small cask of oil, the only article saved out of about $200 worth of stock. It was a severe drawback to Mr. Davies, who is a hard working, industrious gentleman, who could ill afford to sustain such a loss.

In the city council last evening the Street Railway by-law was read for the first time.

The work of raising the Beaver, now lying on the rocks at the Narrows, was commenced yesterday morning by Messrs. Roberts and Llewellyn.

About 1:15 this afternoon a horse attached to McFarland's bakery wagon took a run up Cordova street but collided with an express when the whiffletree broke and away the horse dashed like an arrow with the traces and lines streaming in the air. When near the corner of Cambie and Cordova streets it lost its footing, and, falling on its side, slid 17 yards on the slippery planks, and that up a slight incline. Before it could recover its feet it was captured, apparently not much worse for its scoot.

Professor Foster has opened a class room at 110 Cambie street, under the patronage of the Marquis of Queensbury and others, where he intends to give instructions in the manly art of self defense. As the Professor is a very jovial and gentlemanly fellow, and particularly as there seems to be a strong tendency here just now towards the development of the biceps, he will likely gather in a number of pupils.

The Rainbow arrived at the City wharf at 2 o'clock this afternoon with a large quantity of freight. To-day's train arrived from the east on time. X.

SUPPOSED TO BE LOST.

Chas. Munroe, A Cassiar Miner, Loses His Way While Prospecting.

During the last summer three well-known miners, George McAuley, Donald McDonald and Charles Munroe, left Dease Creek on a prospecting tour down the Dease and De'lore rivers. Some time last month Munroe left their camp on the De'lore to visit a point on Black river about twenty or twenty-five miles distant intending to be absent only five days. A number of days passed and Munroe did not return. His two partners got anxious about his safety and went to look for him, but after searching for many days had to give up. They then started up the De'lore on their way to Dease creek and when they had traveled about four miles up stream they saw a foot print on the sand evidently only a few days old which was made by one of Munroe's boots as the sole of one of them had nails in it in an unusual way that could not be mistaken. Of course whether the boot was worn by Munroe or some one else could not be told. A $100 reward was offered for the finding of poor Charley who was a most exemplary man in every way.

Victoria School of Arms.

The annual meeting of the Victoria School of Arms was held last evening in the drill shed, James Bay, a representative number of the militia being present. The financial statement showed the school to be in a flourishing condition with about fifty members on the roll, and a large quantity of new apparatus on hand.

On motion, Sgt. Major R. Munro was re-elected President; Gr. Beaumont Boggs, Secretary; and Sgts. Hibben and Sargison with Grs. H. J. Martin and G. Williams as a committee of management. It was resolved that the present subscription of $2.50 be reduced to $1 a year in order to secure the universal support of the militia.

The school will re-open next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, when the instructors will form their classes for the winter, and it is hoped a large number will present.

A MORAL REFORMER (?)

The conduct of the Hon. JOHN ROBSON in attempting to throw cold water on Ald. WILSON'S Morals By-Law, has been variously commented on by the public. As the honorable gentlemen has himself frequently pretended to encourage this sort of lawmaking, it does seem inconsistent that he should have seen fit to abjure anything in accord with his professed principles. But Mr. ROBSON is a politician. His speech to the W. C. T. U. may have been suggested more from a desire to hurt Ald. WILSON than to advance the cause of morality. The honorable gentleman appears to consider himself a kind of double-extracted essence of purity and goodness, and it is just possible that his remarks were prompted by something like professional jealousy. He conscientiously believed that he was running the morals of this country after his own fashion and naturally suspects that his patent is about to be infringed upon. Let us inform the Hon. Mr. ROBSON, however, that he cannot be a standard of morality in this community. When he allied himself with the Colonist in the MENZIES case he forfeited whatever respect we ever had for his religious character, and he must be lost indeed if he does not hear "a still small voice" calling to him, "Where is AH LOI?"

TO THE WORLD.

For the credit of the profession it is pleasing to note that the Vancouver World disavows any desire to prejudice THE TIMES' libel case. At the same time it is hard to help noticing that in the same article in which our contemporary protests it's innocence, there is an evident desire to repeat the offensiveness and to rub it well in, if possible. We are willing to admit, of course, that the attempt to prejudice the case was not done intentionally, but at the same time it is well that the first mistake should not be repeated over again. If our contemporaries have not already made themselves liable for contempt of court, they have escaped, more through fault of the law than through their own good conduct. Our gracious contemporary, after assuring us that we "ought to be ashamed" of ourselves for having said what we did in self-defence, proceeds to daub a new coat of white-wash over our friend, the coal king, points to the proud position "he has attained in the affections of his fellow citizens," and accuses the TIMES of "hounding" him simply because he is a rich man. The wild zeal of our contemperary, in its condemnation of the TIMES and its praise of Mr. Dunsmuir, is condensed in the following sentence:

"There are, doubtless, a few demagogues and would-be anarchists everywhere, who would gloat over some of the Times socialistic articles on "Capital and Labor," but as they are usually the scum of the earth, their opinion is really not worth thinking about."

Of course our contemporary has other choice references, such as "excrescences on the body politic" and "ghouls of our modern life," but these are only useful inasmuch as they show the nature of the literary genius which has been let loose in the woods up around the Inlet. Our contemporary descends from the "hifalutin" long enough to discuss a small matter like dollars and cents, and declares emphatically that he is not influenced by the prospect of "fat government advertising." This is well. The established press, like an established church, is out of touch that out of sympathy with the masses of the people. Let us hope the World will acquire sense with years, and it will become more manly, and that, unlike the Colonist, it will not always seek to thrive by fawning.

CONTEMPT OF COURT.

A London dispatch informs us that the London Times, case against PARNELL will, in all probability, fall to the ground. The press, glad no doubt to have a bark at the big Thunderer, are freely commenting on the probability, forgetting that the Commission is practically a court of justice and that Mr. JUSTICE HANNEN is notoriously hard on newspapers that attempt to prejudice a case. Should any of the newspapers, who overstep the line of prudence in this direction, have meted out to them a well-merited punishment, they will command but little sympathy. That portion of the press of this province, whose narrow minded envy induced them to barter the honor of the profession in an endeavour to hound down a persecuted contemporary, should read, mark and inwardly digest the warning contained in the dispatch referred to. The conduct of the World and Colonist, in respect to THE TIMES, is precisely in keeping with the character and records of those journals and (as the former has little or no record) of the journalists responsible for the utterances of the respective papers. We have frequently expressed the opinion that the press of the province should frown down the too common practice of newspaper persecution, by politicians especially, and we have always shown a willingness to join with others in the profession to stop, by every means in our power, the ridiculous tendency towards "legalized coercion" which permeates every class of society in this province, but more especially in this good city of Victoria. It is not impossible, however, that if we are to receive the bitter opposition of the papers in question, that it may become necessary for us to call the attention of the court to the shameful attempt that is being made to prejudice the public mind against this paper.

THE LATE EMPEROR'S DIARY.

By last night's dispatches we learn that the Imperial German Ambassador consulted with Lord SALISBURY on the advisability of endeavoring to suppress the English version of the diary of the late Emperor FREDERICK, which has been lately published. The spirited reply of the First Lord of the Treasury will meet with the approval of every one not only throughout our Empire but in the United States, and all countries where the freedom of the press is dear to the people as one of the great bulwarks of liberty. We have had Emperors before to-day dictating to English statesmen. The introduction of the Conspiracy to Murder Bill in 1858, at the instigation of the late NAPOLEON III., was an instance which drew from Lord PALMERSTON the famous expression of "When we were not afraid of NAPOLEON le grand, we should not be afraid of NAPOLEON le petit." We consider the request of the German ambassador as entirely out of place, and not consistent with British liberty. Germany can muzzle the press in its own country but it cannot do so in England. The diary, as published, has not in the main much particular interest for the British public. It sheds a new light on the birth of German unity, which is only of an historical value. In the eyes of Britons this, important as it is, pales when we read the entry of the 8th of March, 1871. Napoleon was at the time a prisoner, and the Treaty of Peace had been ratified a week previously. It reads thus: "Napoleon quietly seeking a rapproachment with us, moderation of the peace conditions on promise of a common war against England." We will not make any comment on the mind of the fallen Emperor, which conceived such an abject proposal. The suggestion had reference to the partition of Belgium, which exists on the treaty of 1815. We are taught that it was the brain of Prince Bismarck that engineered the idea of German unity, but according to the diary it was the Crown Prince, in whose mind the Imperial idea originated. It was he, the modest, retiring gentleman and brave soldier, who urged that colossal stroke of statesmanship upon the King and his ministers. The publication of the document detracts very much from the preconceived ideas and statesmanship of the Great Chancellor, for which the world has hitherto given him credit. He will no doubt endeavor to suppress anything that would detract from his borrowed laurels, and hence the desire to stop the publication of the diary in England, a thing which would be impossible for any prince of our own realm to accomplish.

"Age Cannot Wither Her."

remarked an old gentleman, as he gazed fondly upon the comely little woman by his side; "but frankly," he continued, "at one time I was afraid cosmetics would." The silly little woman, in order to appear youthful, plastered her face with different varieties of whitewash, yclept "balms," "creams," "lotions," etc. "Yes," interrupted the little woman, "I did, until my skin became like parchment, and so pimply and coarse." "Well," said the listner, "what do you use now?" "Use," was the reply, "nothing but common sense, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Common sense told me if my blood was pure, liver regulated, appetite good, that the outward woman would take on the hue of health. The 'Discovery' did all those things, and actually rejuvenated me."

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

Cable and American Dispatches—Interesting Items.

Ottawa, Oct. 15—R. J. McConnell has just returned from a geological exploration of the Yukon and Mackenzie rivers. The Yukon is described as a river of immense size and volume, 2500 miles long and navigable for fully 2000 miles. It runs through about 200 miles of gold range, and precious metal may easily be seen with the naked eye in the ledges of rock that abound on either bank, but so far all mining for gold is done in placers, the miners washing out at bars on the river from $20 to $25 per day; that this can be carried on for only about two months in the year, owing first to high water, and secondly to the frost, which comes early and stops all operations.

THE TIMES' LIST.

Dublin, Oct. 15—The Freeman's Journal publishes to-day the list of the charges against the Parnellites which the London Times will bring forward before the commission of inquiry. The Times indicts 64 Irish members of Parliament. The list of other persons included James Carey Breslin, the hospital inspector of Richmond jail, who said he assisted Stephens to escape; Stephens, Burne, Egan, Ford, Brennan, Sheridan, Condon, and other Fenians. The Land League is charged with illegal acts, with the object of obtaining the complete independence of Ireland. The Ladies' League is included, with the names of Anna Parnell and others.

THE HERALD'S OFFER.

It is understood that the New York Herald agreed to pay £400 for the exclusive use of extracts from the book published in Dr. Mackenzie's Paris edition, but it is believed that it will now decline to pay that sum on the ground that the prior publication of the matter in the Medical Journal was a violation of the agreement.

SHADOWING DON CARLOS.

THE LATE LORD SACKVILLE'S WILL.

The will of the late Lord Sackville bequeaths everything belonging to his estate not entailed to the Queen's maid of honor. Sir Lionel Sackville West, British Minister at Washington, inherits the entailed estates, which are worth £10,000 a year.

CHARGE OF MISMANAGEMENT.

Mr. Pickerigill, Liberal member for Bethnal Green, has announced his intention of moving for the impeachment of General Sir Charles Warren at the next session of Parliament on the broad charge of having by his conspicuous mismanagement destroyed the espit de corps of the metropolitan police.

MINERS SETTLED WITH.

Signs are increasing that the threatened strike of colliers will not take place, it being understood that the masters have agreed to pay half of the advance in wages demanded immediately and the other half at the end of the month.

THE TIMES CASE.

London, Oct. 16.—The opinion generally prevails among the lawyers that the Times case, as delivered to Parnell's solicitors, is startlingly weak, and predictions are freely made that it will fall to the ground. The newspapers are commenting upon the case without reserve, apparently obvious of the fact that the Parnell commission is a court of justice, and that Justice Hannan is notoriously severe upon persons whose utterances have a tendency to prejudice cases which are or may subsequently come before him. In this view scores of editors have qualified themselves for imprisonment for contempt of court.

MACKENZIE'S BOOK.

The Times devotes an entire page to an impartial review of both Dr. Mackenzie's book and the report of the German physicians on the illness of the late Emperor Frederick, and after a calm dissection of both, decides that Mackenzie is shown to have applied the knife in the treatment of the Kaiser's throat oftener than did his German colleagues. The prolongation of an unfortunate controversy does not help Mackenzie except to increase the sale of his book, but on the contrary swells the already large number of persons who believe that he has permitted himself to make statements which circumstances do not justify, and whose absolute accuracy he cannot prove.

A DANGEROUS PROPOSITION.

Count Von Hatzfeldt, German ambassador, to-day consulted with Lord Salisbury as to the wisdom of endeavoring to suppress the English version of the diary of the late Emperor Frederick. Lord Salisbury informed his visitor that the suppression of the version would not only be unjustifiable but impossible.

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE.

The publishers of Dr. Mackenzie's book guarded it with great care, but the Sunday Times eluded their vigilance and were able to present to their readers the entire context of the book. The demand for copies of the paper was unprecedented, and thousands more than were issued could have been sold at prices in advance of the standard price. The Times, in an article accompanying the English physician's story, asserts that Dr. Mackenzie is suffering from serious mental excitement.

SULLIVAN THE ACTOR.

Barry Sullivan's condition has not changed for the better. Drs. Sir William Gull and Sir Andrew Clarke, were consulted by the attending physicians to-day, but it is understood they gave no hope of the patient's recovery.

PAPAL CONSISTORY.

Rome, Oct. 15.—The Pope will hold a consistory, shortly, at which he will deliver a vocation on the subject of the Emperor's visit to him.

DEATH OF THE LANDGRAVE OF HESSE.

Berlin, Oct. 16—Information is received that Frederick William, Landgrave of Hesse, was drowned recently by falling overboard from a steamer plying between Batavia, Japan and Singapore. He was 34 years of age.

TEN THOUSAND DROWNED.

San Francisco, Oct. 15—The steamer Belgic brings the following: Twenty villages near Peking were recently swept away by floods and more than 10,000 people drowned.

The Hun Ho river, in the Moukden district, has overflowed its banks, wrecking hundreds of houses, drowning many people and destroying crops.

The cattle disease is still working havoc in the Phillipine Islands. In one province 66,000 perished in a few months.

Cholera in Hongkong has almost entirely subsided.

The writ for Cariboo has been forwarded to the returning-officer, Mr. Stevenson, of Quesnelle, B. C. The election day will be fixed by him, he being authorized by law to select nominations and polling days. The nomination must, however, be not earlier than fifteen nor later than thirty days after the posting of the proclamation. The day for holding the polls must be not earlier than fifteen nor later than thirty days after nominations.

ALASKA NEWS.

Prospector Drowned—Profits of the Alaska Commercial Company.

W. Ross, a Juneau prospector, who left Yakutat in a canoe, was drowned at sea. A month later the remains of the canoe were found on the beach. No trace of Ross' body was found.

The Alaska Commercial Company, with a capital stock of $200,000, clears annually out of its operations in Alaska Territory the immense sum of two million dollars.

The cost of the Mount St. Elias expedition was fully $3000. The whole expense was shared by the four gentlemen comprising the party.

The season's pack of salmon in Alaska will exceed 400 cases.

A witness examined before the commission now enquiring into the operations of the Alaska Commercial Company said that in the whole time that the company had the privilege of taking seals on the Pribyloff Islands, the company had paid over $8,000,000 to the government, or a sum exceeding by $800,000 the price paid by the Government for the whole of Alaska, with the Seals Islands included.

An Explanation.

What is this "nervous trouble" with which so many seem now to be afflicted? If you will remember a few years ago the word Malaria was comparatively unknown—to-day it is as common as any word in the English language, yet this word covers only the meaning of another word used by our forefathers in times past. So it is with nervous diseases, as they and Malaria are intended to cover what our grandfathers called Biliousness, and all are caused by troubles that arise from a diseased condition of the Liver which in performing its functions finding it cannot dispose of the bile through the ordinary channel is compelled to pass it off through the system, causing nervous troubles, Malaria, Bilious Fever, etc. You who are suffering can well appreciate a cure. We recommend Green's August Flower. Its' cures are marvelous. *

The Right Time.

Probably there is no period in life more important for the mental and moral training of youths than that between eight and seventeen years of age. If the spring-time of life is well employed, good results may be expected in after years. No better preparation can be afforded boys in this province than that which may be obtained at Corrig School, which is already largely patronized, and which s weekly increasing in number

CHAPTER XIX.

THEY MET ONCE MORE.

There was one who had heard Brownie's cry. Black Sam was crossing the woods toward home. Sam was past 70 now, and bent and feeble, but he ran up valiantly when he heard the shriek. He saw Rip's hand laid upon Brownie. He thought she was being murdered.

He had an ax on his shoulder. Old as he was, he would have cleft the tramp's skull in a moment, but the fellow saw the descending ax and caught it. He let the girl go and laid hold of the negro.

"Run, Miss Brownie," cried old Sam.

Brownie was still wild with terror. She was an unreasoning creature at best. She gave in to the moment's impulse, and ran as Sam told her.

The tramp tried to shake off the negro.

"Let me go!" he muttered, in a rage. "Let me go, or I'll murder you."

But Sam clung about him with a hampering hold, and kept him back. It roused all the fury in him. He doubled his fist, and gave Sam a stunning blow. The black man fell like a stone and lay still.

"There ——!" said the tramp.

Two men met Brownie as she ran. No sooner did she catch sight of one of these two than she flung her arms around his neck in an agony of fright and ecstasy of relief. She cuddled down against his breast as if he was the last man on earth and she never meant to let him go.

Truly she never did. Was he not Robert Edgerly, her repentant, returning lover? The other man was her brother Harry, now a well grown youth of 18. They had come to look for her. There were Harry's strong and willing arms for her to fling herself into, and Harry was the dearest brother she had. Yet she ran past him and flung herself frantically upon a young man she had quarreled with, and who was no kin to her at all. Truly, girls are queer.

At sight of them Rip disappeared. It was as if he had dropped through the ground. Robert and Harry searched all about. That night the neighborhood men scoured the woods for him. They never found him.

Sam was alive but unconscious when they came to him. He was old, black and ignorant, and timid and weak, yet he was as true a hero, true a knight of chivalry as ever breathed. He gave his life to succor fair lady in distress.

The faithful soul never came to his senses. His head struck a stone as he fell under the blow from Rip's fist. He breathed on unconsciously for two hours. Then—another link was broken that bound the Carstones to their vanished childhood. He was buried in the Carstone graveyard, not far from the master to whose children he had been so faithful. Many is the time Sam had said:

"I allus wanted a big funeral. It is 'spectable like, as if a man was a gen'lman of consequence. When I die it'd be a comfort to me to know de fust families all turned out and helped lay de old man away."

If he could have known it, Sam had his wish to his heart's content. The first families turned out in mass and followed him to his grave. Could he have known it, he would have considered his funeral a credit to the Carstone family.

It was some days before Brownie got back her spirits. She was pale and weak, and easily startled. And now the Englishman proved how gentle and devoted he could be. He showed beyond a doubt that he both could and did see whether a lady was comfortable or not. When the neighbors gathered at Sam's funeral, in the kindly country fashion Edgerly took his place with the Carstones beside Brownie, as if he had a right there.

Then afterward, when Brownie was begin[illegible] usual one evening. When he went away he boldly kissed her good night before all the folk!

Brownie blushed and pouted slightly and drew back.

"Oh, come now," said he. "When a young lady throws herself into a man's arms in the presence of a third party, you know"——

Brownie was suppressed.

Then he went away for a few days.

"What have you done with your forget-me-not ring, Brownie?" he asked when he came back.

"It's gone," she answered mournfully. "I wore it all the same and never took it off. But I was robbed of it that day—that day"——

"Oh, well, don't mind about it."

Next there was silence. Robert broke it with a remark as follows, to wit:

"I have been away from England a year and a half. If I don't get out of this heathenish country soon, I shall forget how civilized people eat."

Brownie looked up.

"I'm going back in January, going home to stay this time."

Brownie gave a start.

"You'll break your heart about me, I know, if I leave you here."

"Don't you think you are a little mean to say that?" she asked.

"So I suppose I shall have to take you over to England with me."

Which he did. She made him as sweet, as true a wife, yes, and as fair and bright, as ever graced a stately home.

* * * * * * *

For Shirley, the faithful, the untiring, her existence moved on as though life was never, never to end for her. She worked and thought for them all, and for everybody, without a stopping or breathing space. Between herself and Brownie's husband a tie of friendship grew that became only stronger as he was older. She had not a brother by blood whose devotion to her was as enthusiastic as Robert's. One's familiars and kin are often the ones who are the most blind to the best that is in him. It was surely so with Shirley, who was used to make so little of herself.

She had not the leisure time to begin her poem as yet. Not yet.

The power her father and the master discerned in her had its forced development in other ways than they had thought. The mother and younger children remained still to be worked for. She and they had still to live from hand to mouth.

So newspaper woman she was and remained. But she degraded her calling to no mean or spiteful or shallow ends. Longfellow tells how the mechanic Albrecht Durer, with his stylus, sang the nobility of labor to the rich and stupid Nurembergers till he startled them from their bourgeoise content. Shirley sang the same song with her pen. It was a pen that cut through the transient down to the eternal good and truth that are the only abiding realities. She sang the worth of wise work, the ladyhood and gentlemanhood that are above and greater than the accident of occupation, or of wealth and poverty. To be sincere, to be gentle and just and helpful to others, to spend time in learning only the things that are worth knowing—this was the golden song of Shirley's pen.

So she kept her life high and valiant.

She was not unhappy in those years. The busy are never wholly miserable. If only she could have poured out her thoughts in the marvelous poem that had hovered in her brain so long she could have quite put the old sorrows aside. As the years went on, she could even have come at last to regard as comedy the tragedy of her life. Toiling with enthusiasm at the work one has chosen is greater than happiness or riches—yea, greater than love itself.

As it was, though, her life was so hard, so different from all she had planned or dreamed of, twenty years before. Robert Edgerly came faithfully over the water to see her every year or two, sometimes with Brownie, sometimes without. Once, too, the charming old father came, and his visit was like an oasis in her desert of toil.

One winter, when Shirley went to Washington for The Morning Herald, Robert Edgerly went with her. She was now a distinguished newspaper woman. Her description of events was at once brilliant and accurate. Unmoved at all times by the glories of the reign of bosh everywhere about her, she saw fact, and kept to it.

The rising star in American politics at this time was a congressman from a western state. He was not precisely what we call a man of the people, though he had made his own way in the world. But it was a poor way as far as getting riches was concerned. He might have become wealthy a dozen times, but he held in burning contempt the methods of enriching himself which come so easy to many men in public life. He was a man incorruptible by money in any shape. There had been that in his life which made the ease and wealth men sighed for, to be no more than vile dross for him. What did he care for money?

In this country a poor man must be a powerful man intellectually, and have very winning ways to impress himself sufficiently on his fellow freemen to get their votes in the beginning. They demand either uncommon talent and honesty or uncommon wealth, one or the other.

The powerful brain, the winning ways the new representative of the people had. He was known to have sprung from the so called upper rank of life. He was a person of the highest culture, and of wide knowledge of men. At the same time there was an air about him that somewhat warned off the commonplace and the vulgar curious from approaching him familiarly. In brief, he was not one on whom you would advance without an introduction, and say in our frank and beautiful American way:

"Say, mister, what might your business be?"

He lost his first election through a small circumstance. He ordered a broiled beefsteak at a little rustic wayside inn. His opponent got wind of it and played it upon a thousand strings, till the independent voters rose to a man and said:

"We'll have no sich stuck up 'ristacrat holdin' office in this deestrick. A man that fried beefsteak ain't good enough fur, ain't good enuf fur us. Let him go somewhere else with them monarchial idees!"

This unlucky mistake was, however, forgiven him in time. He possessed splendid ability; he was true as steel. He had a clear, high minded scorn of crooked ways and political dickering that worked against him at first. In time, though, as always, this very quality counted in his favor, and then he had all his own way. More than all, the new man was a matchless orator. He carried men's hearts in his hand by the power of his eloquence.

Shirley had heard of him frequently, and he of her. Their two atmospheres had widened and widened till at last they touched.

"I hear," said her brother Robert one day, "that your great Congressman Dumoray is to speak to-morrow. Do you know him, Shirley?"

"I met him—once, some years ago, answered Shirley calmly.

"Your people seem to be losing their heads about him. Is he such great things as they say?"

"I don't know," Shirley answered, still more calmly. "I don't know enough about him to say. That awful reverence for officials, even the highest, that some people have, in a general way I never did feel, and never expect to."

"Why?"

"Why? Because I know how they are made."

Philip Dumoray had gone back to his western home and plunged into political life. Its feverish excitements, its very hazards and wild uncertainties suited him. On his side, too, there was something to be overlived, a burning heartache, a haunting pain and regret that must be deadened ere peace returned again. The very knowledge that, in political life, to-day he might be upon the crest of the wave, to-morrow in the trough of the sea, drew him strongly. It gave him intense and constant mental occupation. He welcomed it as one in fever welcomes the cool, salt breeze from the sea.

He could dispose of his life as he pleased. He had only himself to think of. As between his fate and Shirley's he had far the best of it.

Philip Dumoray was the champion of a new movement in American politics, a movement which has for its aim the rights of man as the father's meant them when they founded this government. The simple announcement that he was to speak drew a great throng to the house.

The galleries were crowded with ladies, many of them in bright dresses and hats, contrasting finely with the dark habit of their escorts. Dumoray was to present a great memorial from the people to their representatives in congress. There was a buzz of expectation as the hand of the hall clock pointed to the hour.

Shirley sat in her place, the faithful English brother by her side. A man entered quietly, tall and commanding, of superb physical presence and perfect grace of manner.

The buzz broke into a volume of sound.

Shirley's eyes swam in a mist. Her heartthrobs came thick and fast. She clutched the wood of the seat till it made her hand ache, afterwards. She sat as motionless and silent as if she had been marble.

Ah!—

He fascinated her still, and so many years had passed that at last this weak minded woman had quite forgiven him.

He smiled and bowed to those about him, and then sat down grave and a little pale, perhaps, but quiet and at ease. Shirley saw him plainly. His hair was white now, thick and clustering still, yet snow white. But the strangely brilliant dark gray eyes were the same, the lofty, ideal face turned toward the throng was the same. High, generous thought and deed keep the human face forever beautiful.

He sat and looked straight before him. A hand touched his arm. Some notes and dispatches were given him. One of the notes read:

"Permit an old friend to congratulate you very sincerely, and to wish you success.

"SHIRLEY CARSTONE."

Then it was the turn of somebody else to start, with a great heart beat, and as suddenly fall back into stillness.

He folded the little white paper smoothly and put it into his breast pocket. If his hand trembled slightly, nobody knew it. The shining, eagle-like glance roamed over the galleries aimlessly, it seemed, but in reality looking for her who was still the one woman of all the world to Philip Dumoray.

He found her. It may be that some subtle soul telegraph sent messages from her to him. It may be that the invisible silver line between them had never been broken, in spite of all and of all these years.

A silent, thrilling look of recognition passed between the two. It was only for an instant, and none saw it but themselves. Yet in that lightning flash there was inspiration for him, there was—God knows what for her. She could not have told herself, only that she saw him once more.

Dumoray had never spoken before as he did that day.

They said his speech was such that it carried even those who were opposed to him off their feet.

He was a master in the use of simple, direct Anglo-Saxon, and at the same time his language was perfect in its grace and polish. His voice was a ringing music; every sentence told like a hammer stroke. His speech stirred the blood and thrilled the heart. It was one of those marvelous orations to which the scholar and the unlettered man listened with like enthusiasm.

He grew more and more impassioned as he went on, till the vast audience were fascinated and melted as one man. Sounds of applause, which could not be quite checked even there, interrupted him at short intervals, so that he waited a little for it to subside. Evermore in these pauses the starlike eye sought Shirley's, the grand head turned unconsciously toward where she sat. And none knew it but Shirley. As for her she listened with beating heart and shining eyes, her thought repeating constantly: "It's just what I would have said myself, the very words."

CITY AND PROVINCE.

—Furred Tongue and Impure Breath are two concomitants of biliousness remedied by Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. Heartburn, which harasses the dyspeptic after meals, and all the perplexing and changeful symptoms of established indigestion, are dispersed by this salutary corrective tonic and celebrated blood purifier. *

—Mr. R. A. Harrison, Chemist and Druggist, Dunnville, Ont., writes: "I can with confidence recommend Northrop & Lyman's Vetetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure for Dyspepsia, Impure Blood, Pimples on the Face, Biliousness, and Constipation—such cases having come under my personal observation." *

—Those intolerably painful and constantly harassing things called piles, which trouble so many people, are soon healed by Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil—the great external remedy for physical suffering and means for relieving pains. A very small quantity achieves results of the most gratifying kind. *

—C. C. Jacobs, Buffalo, an employee of the U. S. Express Co., says: Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured him of a bad case of Piles of 8 years standing, having tried almost every known remedy, "besides two Buffalo physicians," without relief; but the Oil cured him; he thinks it cannot be recommended too highly. *

Criminal Libel.

His Worship Mayor Grant to-day instituted criminal proceedings for libel against Messrs. Ellis & Sargison, proprietors of the Colonist. We understand that the alleged libel appeared in the Colonist of 3rd October last in a letter signed "Taxpayer," and headed "Who connived at Thomas Russell's escape?"

The Rock Slide.

The engine which was derailed yesterday afternoon by striking a rock slide near Niagara Canyon, arrived at Russell's station at 4 o'clock this morning. It will be some time before the engine will be again fit for service.

Tickets for the ball to be held to-morrow evening can be procured at the hall during the day and at the door during the evening. At midnight a supper, provided by the ladies of Saanich, will be spread in the large room adjoining the pavilion. A large number of citizens will attend the exhibition, leaving this city at an early hour to-morrow morning.

Expenses of the Meeting.

The announcement was made by the Rev. Mr. McLeod at the rink last evening that the expenses in connection with Mr. Moody's visit would amount to about $1000. It was explained that this was incurred in renting the building, preparing seats and fitting up the place generally. Mr. Moody did not receive a cent to defray his ordinary expenses. It is understood that the collections have been quite liberal so far, and that a statement of the manner in which they were used will be published in THE TIMES in due course.

Heavy Seizure.

A heavy seizure was made at Calgary the other day of a large consignment of liquors, put in barrels at Montreal as jams and jellies, and shipped to a well-known firm, it being the usual practice of smugglers to ship it in that way in order to avoid suspicion, and to make an inquiry at the depot, and receipt for it as agents of the firms to whom it is addressed. The police have seized several small lots in the past few days, and now insist on making a thorough inspection of all freights and express.

Debate.

Institute No. 85, Y. M. I., held a meeting last night and decided to hold their first of a series of debates on Friday evening next. The subject chosen was: "Should Canada follow the example set by the United States and exclude Chinese." The following members will take part in the debate: Rev J A Van Nevel and A McDonald, leaders; Geo Madigan, Geo Tribe, Fred Lang, A Agius, A E McDonald, Sergt Mellon, T Hodges, H McDowell, Sergt Callahan, T Roarke, J Jones, T Deasy, Sergt D'Amour, J McManus, A Trainor, W Harris, T Dougherty and W B Smith.

Dan'l Sully.

The popular Irish comedian, Dan'l Sully, will be at the theatre next Friday and Saturday evenings, and at the Saturday matinee, and his coming will be welcomed by all lovers of fun. His visit a year ago established him as a favorite. His company is materially the same as at that time, and includes Max Arnold, the German comedian, Master Malvey, that wonderful boy, M'lle Auzula, a charming soubrette, H. P. Keen, Mrs. Nelson Kueass and others. "Daddy Nolan" will be played on Friday evening, "The Corner Grocery," Saturday afternoon and a double comedy bill Saturday night. The Brooklyn Bridge act will be shown in the Friday evening's performance.

Sandbagged.

Charles W. Rhodes, second son of the late Henry Rhodes of this city, was knocked down and robbed in Seattle shortly after midnight on Sunday. Mr. Rhodes had been down the Sound purchasing land and was returning to his room at Prof. Ingraham's residence, in North Seattle, when three men sprang in front of him. One struck him with his fist, knocking him down and as he fell struck him again with a sandbag, rendering him unconscious for some time. When he recovered his senses his pockets were turned inside out and $330 in cash missing. His head and face were terribly bruised and swollen. The night was so dark that Mr. Rhodes did not recognize his assailants.

—Officer Redgrave has resigned from the city force to accept a provincial appointment at Alert Bay.

OUR TOWN MAJOR.

At the Rink—Aldermen—Reorganization of Police—Public Meeting.

What a crowd at the rink last evening to hear Mr. Moody; over three thousand! and three newspaper men. Three hundred converts! Glorious! The chariot of repentance rolls along. The newspaper fellows being neither Christians, backsliders, or unbelievers, clearly proves that that portion of humanity has no place on the other side of Jordan. Mr. Brown has the union choir well in hand now; they are in excellent form and seem never to tire of the songs of praise. The Major is never tired of listening to them, especially to the sweet voices that occupy the front row.

"Where art thou?" That was the great query last evening. Many of us are in a very bad place; like the Major, they wish they were out of it. Where was the City Council? They should attend in a body and drink of the words of morality and everlasting life that flows from Mr. Moody. They'll need it this evening when they come to consider the Moral By-law. It's to be hoped that some of them have been to the rink and that they will assist Alderman Wilson to amend his by-law and make it a benefit and not a farce.

The Major was reading an article the other day in a well known London publication; it was on Victoria and Vancouver. It was a repetition of the Major's opinion, and amongst other suggestions of importance, said: "If Victoria can secure connection with the mainland system of railways the hopes and prospects of Vancouver would be shattered." There, now, lose no time; assist Alderman Kelly in his bonus by-laws for railways. You Aldermen have had bickering and jawing enough. The sewers are shelved for a season. Now devote your time a little to something practicable —not in striving to muzzle the press.

While the aldermen are endeavoring to reorganize the city police force, it were well they should consider the suggestion of THE TIMES about the appointment of a Board of Police Commissioners. The city fathers know the pathology of the disease, and THE TIMES has suggested the cure. It is the only way, gentlemen, if you are in earnest and wish to reform your evil ways you must listen to the inspired teachings of the press. If you only want to oust your officers in order to replace them with other incompetents, you'd better have the d—l you know than the one you don't know. Whatever boodling you may lend your aid to, keep your police force free from the taint of factions. Let that branch of city government be pure, anyway; it may help to cover up a multitude of sins.

The Colonist young man wishes to stuff his readers that a clipper-built craft can be turned into a "scow." Isn't a "scow" flat-bottomed? Go to sea, young man. He also tells the intelligent cockneys here that the exhibition of 1851 was held "in the crystal palace, Sydenham," and that it was an exposition. Young man, neither the "Sydenham Palace" nor the "Exposition" had existence in '51. The building of the World's Exhibition of all nations (the first of the kind) was erected in Hyde Park on the south side of the Serpentine, to the east of the present Albert memorial, eighteen miles from Sydenham.

When are we going to have the public meeting that was postponed. There are many charges to be brought against the Ottawa wire-pullers.

The removal of the office of Chinese interpreter.

The attempt of removing C Battery.

The calling of the Chinese steamers.

That's material enough for one meeting. [illegible] want to know who the traitors are; so does THE TOWN MAJOR.

MOODY'S MEETINGS.

The night being fine a large crowd assembled at the rink last evening to hear Mr. Moody. After the usual preliminary services Mr. Moody came forward and said that he would take for his text the first sermon that was ever preached. God was the preacher and the congregation was only two. It was to be found in the 3d chapter of Genesis, 9th verse. "Where Art Thou." Half the sermons preached were lost because they were not taken individually, the Christians do not take them to themselves, neither do the others. Everyone fancies the words are intended for their neighbors, and sermon and text are handed from one to the other till at last they get flung out of the door. He would ask everyone to-night, the Christian, the back-slider and the unbeliever the great question, "where art thou?" Taking these services we should ask ourselves which side were we on. No one denied that there was a great movement going on. People did not always take sufficient interest in these services to come out day after day and night after night for nothing. The temptations of the present day were numerous; there were twenty pit-falls for the young to-day where there was not one years ago. He was told that some who professed to be Christians here had wine on their tables, which was a great source of temptation to their children. He would ask mothers "where is your boy?" Talking to backsliders, he would say, many were converted in the old country or the eastern provinces; they come to this new land. They went to their church, were received coldly by their fellow christians, and by degrees became cold an indifferent themselves, and became what are called backsliders. Half who claimed to be backsliders never slid forward. The man or woman who ever tasted of the heavenly gift could never be satisfied without the divine guidance afterwards. Backslider, "where art thou!" Backsliding fathers and mothers had always proved a stumbling block to their children, and the speaker instanced the circumstance of Lot and his children. He, the preacher, would say that it is an easy matter for fathers and mothers to get their children to sin, in drunkenness, in licentiousness and vice. He had pitied Lot's wife: She looked back, for her children were there! If backsliders would return the Lord would forgive them. Look what He had done for Peter and David. The prodigal was nothing but a backslider. What story was told by the Saviour to assist the backslider. "If the righteous scarcely be saved where shall the ungodly appear." Life and existence on earth is short. We go up the hill gradually and come down with a rush, and at the bottom we see the head-stone of some dear departed one; a father, a loving mother, or a dear child. Years slip away now like months, like weeks, like days. He would ask his hearers, "Where Art Thou?"

On calling for those who wished to retire to the consulting room, about 200 of both sexes, and all ages and conditions answered to the appeal, Mr. Moody went to minister to the penitents, the choir sang "Rock of Ages," the Rev. Mr. McLeod and some three or four in the audience led in prayer. Many were touched even to tears during the evening.

The usual meeting at Pandora Street Methodist Church this afternoon was largely attended. There will be the usual meeting to-night at the rink. Choir practice at 7.30 and the formal opening at 8 o'clock.

Marine Notes.

Steamer Olympian has been temporarily withdrawn from the Seattle route, to enable an inspection to be made of her cylinder. The piston has been out of order for several days and it is thought prudent to hold an examination.

When the statement that the steamer T. J. Potter was to return to the Columbia river was first published it was discredited by many who think they are well informed in steamboat matters, but the statement has since been confirmed.

Captain Lee, of the Canadian Pacific steamship Abyssinia, reports that at 12:35 p. m. September 14th he passed within 2½ miles of a reef which is not indicated on the charts. The Abyssinia was then in latitude 36:39 north and longitude 142:27 east. At the time there was a moderate northwest breeze and fine clear weather. The sea was breaking over the reef, which is supposed to be the same that was reported by a Russian man-of-war in 1859 and again in 1870.

San Francisco, Oct. 17—Arrived, barkentine John Worster, Tacoma; ship Kate Davenport, Seattle; bark Bundaleer, Departure Bay; steamer Bertha, Kodiak. Sailed, steamer Arcata, Coos Bay.

Steamer Danube arrived last night from Vancouver. Pilot Urquhart was landed and the steamer passed on for Portland.
